P. O. S. A. CONVENTION OPENS WITH WELCOME BY MAYOR

Washington's Welcome To Burned City Recalled—Order a Great Asset In View of Problems Facing Country—Large and Enthusiastic Attendance.

The formal opening of the Commandery General, Patriotic Order Sons of America, convention occurred this morning at 10 o'clock at Mechanics' Hall on Henry street. In spite of the storm there was a large and at the same time an enthusiastic attendance at this opening meeting, to which the public was invited. The hall was handsomely decorated with the national colors and the desks with palms, ferns golden rod and gladioli.

Ira Britt, chairman of the executive committee, acting as master of ceremonies, said that while it was stormy without he felt sure that the opening meeting would prove that there was ample sunshine within, and announced that the program would open with the singing of one verse of "My Country 'Tis of Thee," which was sung with fervor. State Chaplain William Lampman of Mt. Vernon then offered prayer, after which the Misses Alice and Charlotte Wager played a piano duet that was heartily enjoyed.

Mr. Britt then introduced Mayor Canfield, a brother member of the order and past president of Washington Camp, No. 2, who gave the address of welcome.

The mayor, in welcoming those present said that it was indeed fitting and proper that the convention should begin its deliberations with an open meeting whereat the public might be able to gain some idea of the principles of the great order and its value. He further reminded his hearers that it was fitting and proper that this convention should be welcomed officially for such had been the honored custom since ancient times, when distinguished guests or honored commissions visiting a city were welcomed at the real gates of the city and officially given the privilege of that city, with the key of the gate.

This custom had been observed in the formative days of our own history, and that of our community, when George Washington visited Kingston and was welcomed by the trustees of the village.

The mayor then read that address of welcome and Washington's reply as follows, the reading calling forth much applause.

Kingston, N. Y., Nov. 16, 1782 To his excellency George Washington, General and Commander in Chief of the American Army, etc.

"We the trustees and freeholders and commonalty of the town of Kingston, for ourselves and in behalf of those we represent, beg leave, with the most unfeigned love and esteem, to congratulate your excellency on your arrival in this place.

"To a people, whose principles of liberty were early decided, and whose actions have been correspondingly, the appearance of a character among them, who by his wisdom has directed, and by his fortitude has led the armies of America to victory and success, affords a joy more sensible felt than is in the power of language to express. While Sir we take a retrospect of the past campaigns, in every vicissitude of the war we observe your excellency exhibit the most steady patriotism, the most undaunted courage; and while as a consequence of this the ministry are sunk into negotiation and their armies into inaction, we trust it is our prayer, that the same benign Providence which has hitherto guided will enable you speedily to terminate the present contest in the unimpaired glory and freedom of this extended Empire. When that day shall arrive, and the welfare of your country prevail, may you then exchange the fatigues of the camp for the sweets of domestic retirement, may your well earned fame run parallel with time and year felicitously through eternity."

Reply of General Washington: "Your polite and friendly reception of me proves your sincerity.

"While I view with indignation, the marks of a wanton and cruel enemy, I perceive with the highest satisfaction that the hearty calamity which befall this flourishing settlement, seems but to have added to the patriotic spirit of its inhabitants; and that a new town is fast rising out of the ashes of the old.

"That you and your worthy constituents may long enjoy that freedom for which you have so nobly contended is the sincere wish of me.

Sons of America, which while they may not be able to take any official action of a remedial nature can offer as individual thinkers and men of patriotic Americanism their earnest and careful support of every movement making for the betterment of living conditions in our country today. The attendance of so many at the opening of the convention, the mayor considered as evidence of the active interest of the members in the good of our country at this hour.

In his welcoming words, Mayor Canfield said that he considered it a privilege to extend the greeting of the city, the people of which were with the organization in spirit, and he assured his audience that they could always feel safe in body and spirit as far as their Americanization was concerned, in the city of Kingston to which they were most sincerely and cordially welcome. The mayor was vociferously applauded.

The greetings were responded to by the state president of the order, who expressed the appreciation of all at the cordial welcome extended the order and the hospitality shown to all. Already they had found their pleasant anticipations more than realized. The speaker assured the mayor, that honoring their flag and the national institutions of our country as they did, he hoped that in addition to their own pleasure and profit in being in Kingston, that city would be the better for their coming.

The next number greatly delighted all present when Joseph and Stanley Myers, two young lads sang "The Red, White and Blue," with so much enthusiasm and so well musically that they were obliged to repeat the chorus.

Another most inspiring number was the reciting of Anthony Wayne's capture of Stony Point, given thrillingly by Edwin I. Myers, a member of the executive committee and district president of Washington Camp. It called forth rounds of applause, as did a most musically correct solo admirably played by Captain Young of the Salvation Army.

The open meeting closed with the singing of one verse of "Xearer My God to Thee," led by the order's quartet, with piano and cornet accompaniment.

MADE PILGRIMAGE TO MASONIC HOME

A Party of Forty-One Left Kingston Sunday Morning and Made Motor Trip to Masonic Home at Utica, Returning Labor Day Evening.

Sunday morning a party of forty-one made an automobile pilgrimage to the Masonic Home at Utica, leaving here at 8:15 o'clock and arriving at the home at 6 o'clock that evening. They returned Labor Day reaching Kingston at 5 o'clock that evening.

The trip was one of the most enjoyable auto trips taken by any of the members of the party in a long time. They carried tents and camping equipment with them, and while the weather in Kingston was rainy, they encountered ideal weather north of here. When they reached the Masonic Home they erected the tents they carried and camped out on the grounds for the night.

The Masonic Home is one of the most beautiful buildings in the state, and the party visited the kindergarten, the Memorial Chapel and other points of interest. The famous Masonic Band of the institution gave a fine concert for the entertainment of the party.

On the way home Labor Day the party camped out for dinner on the banks of the Mohawk river, nine miles below Amsterdam. Utica is about 140 miles from this city.

HUSBAND TRAPPED WIFE DIED TOO

By Telegram to The Freeman. Chicago, Sept. 2.—How William Fitch Tanner, a Baltimore and Ohio cashier, and his wife, went to their death, locked in a last embrace; beneath the wheels of a Chicago and Northwestern train at Hubbardwood Station, will be told before a coroner's jury today.

The couple were crossing the tracks when Mrs. Tanner's foot became caught between the wooden sidewalk and a rail. The husband stooped to extricate it as the train came in sight. A score of persons screamed as Tanner worked frantically to free his wife and John Miller, a flagman, leaped to his assistance. In the blinding glare of the engine's headlights they worked desperately, but in vain.

Then Tanner stood up and clasped his wife in his arms, and together they waited a second later the engine was on them.

Miller jumped, but too late, and he was struck by the engine and hurled 40 feet. He suffered the loss of a leg, a broken arm and other injuries, but has a chance for life, physicians say.

The husband and wife were cut to pieces.

HEAVY TRAFFIC ON LABOR DAY

Said to be The Record For Number Of Automobiles and Tourists Who Passed Through Kingston Saturday, Sunday and the Holiday.

Automobile and tourist traffic through Kingston over the Labor Day holiday was the greatest in the history of the city, according to those in a position to know. The rush started Friday evening through Kingston for the summer resorts, and the homeward bound tourists passed through on Sunday and Labor Day.

The Ulster and Delaware railroad found it necessary to run the hush-bands' train in three sections and all of them were crowded. Traffic by boat was also heavy, and the Day Line steamers brought and carried away hosts of tourists during the three days.

The ferry Transport and the famous Skillys reaped a harvest during the three days, and there was a long line of automobiles parked on Hasbrouck avenue and Ferry street all day waiting an opportunity to cross.

Every hotel in the city was filled, and every possible accommodation was utilized for the caring of the tourists traffic. In fact so heavy was the traffic that many automobile parties were unable to find rooms for the night, and were forced to sleep in their cars.

The need of the Sleightbush bridge was never more emphasized than the past three days.

Auto Ran Into Pond. Automobiles coming to town Monday night, reported that there had been a number of automobile accidents along the highway leading from the Catskill mountain sections. A car owned by a man named Farris of the town of Olive ran into Temple Pond, but was gotten out without much damage. A Packard touring car went through a fence about Shokan and was badly damaged, while other cars skidded and were damaged.

WORKERS TO SHARE IN RETURNED R. R. PROFITS UNDER CUMMINS BILL FAVORABLY REPORTED

Transportation Board of Five Would Have Wide Powers---To Be at Least 20 Systems---Rates to Remain for Time Being.

Washington, Sept. 2.—Establishment of a system of profit-sharing by employees is but one of the far reaching provisions of the bill for the restoration of the country's railroads to private ownership which was favorably reported today to the senate by Senator Cummins, Republican, Iowa, as chairman of the senate interstate commerce committee.

The measure provides for the repeal of the federal control act of March 21, 1915, and the return of the railroads, on the last day of the calendar month, in which it becomes a law.

Rates in force at the time of the repeal takes effect are to remain in force "until changed by competent authority."

The Controlling Board. The railroad transportation board is to consist of five members, appointed by the president, with the advice and consent of the senate, at $12,000 a year each. No member of the board can hold any office or employment under any railroad corporation, or be pecuniarily interested in the stocks and bonds of any such corporation.

Many functions of the interstate commerce commission are transferred to this board, which is "clothed with many and most important powers, in addition to making the plan of consolidation of all the railroads of the country into not less than 20 nor more than 35 systems," Cummins said.

Advances made by the government to the railroads and chargeable to capital account are to be evidenced by bonds or other securities, payable in five years with interest at 5 per cent per annum; other indebtedness to be evidenced by demand notes with interest at 6 per cent per annum," Cummins stated.

Upon passage of the bill, the interstate commerce commission is to "divide the country into rate districts" and the carriers into rate groups," for the purpose of rate fixing.

New Rates Effective in 4 Months. Under the bill "new schedules of rates which are filed within 30 days after federal control ceases become effective at the end of four months after they are filed, with such changes as the commission may, in the meantime order," and until the expiration of the four months period, this act constitutes a guaranty to the railroads which have entered into contracts respecting compensation, under the act of March 21, 1915, of a proportionate amount of the contract compensation, and with respect to the railroads with which no contracts have been made, it constitutes a guaranty of a proportionate railroad operating income.

At the end of this period the guaranty ceases. If during this period any railroad earns more than the guaranty the excess is to be paid into the treasury of the United States."

In analyzing section 6 of the bill, Senator Cummins stated:

"In making rates for the rate group the commission is to take into consideration the interests of the public, the shippers, the wages of labor, the cost of maintenance, and operation—including taxes and a fair return upon the value of the property used or held for the purpose of transportation, and it is required to lower rates accordingly."

"If any railroad in the group receives more than a fair return upon the value of its property the excess is to be paid into the railroad transportation board created under the bill. One-half of the excess is to be paid by the board in the following manner:

"First—The promotion of 'invention and research to ameliorate the conditions of labor and to lessen the hazards of employment.

"Second—to extend and improve hospital relief.

"Third—to supplement existing systems of insurance and pensions.

"Fourth—to afford opportunity for the technical education of employees.

"Fifth—to establish a system of profit sharing by the employees.

"In the administration of this fund, the board is to organize an advisory council, composed of one representative from each railroad, the remaining one-half of the excess is to be deposited in a fund and expended by the board in the purchase of equipment to be leased to railroads under proper terms, or to be loaned to carriers unable to provide themselves with proper equipment and facilities upon reasonable security.

"No excess earnings above a fair dividend are to be capitalized or used as a basis for increased rates."

Section 9 of the bill was described by Senator Cummins as furnishing the means of the solution of the railroad problem presented, in guaranteeing the division of the ownership and operation of the railroads into not less than 20 nor more than 35 systems. He said:

"It provides that in the division of the railroads into systems, competition shall be preserved as fully as possible, and wherever practicable existing routes and channels of trade shall be maintained; that the several systems shall be so arranged that the cost of transportation as between competitive systems and as related to the value of the railroad property shall be the same so far as practicable to the end that these systems can employ uniform rates in the movement of competitive traffic and, under a recent enactment, can substantially the same rate of return upon the value of their respective properties."

By Telegram to The Freeman. Albany, Sept. 2.—Five persons were hurt, two seriously and perhaps fatally, and a score were badly shaken up when the north bound Delaware and Hudson freight train, known as the "Cannonball," crashed into a motor truck carrying a party of thirty-five Troy picknickers on their way home from Saratoga Lake, at the upper Third street crossing, Waterford, at 8:10 o'clock last night.

The autobus was cut in half just back of the driver's seat. All the seriously injured are at Cohoes City Hospital. The injured are: John Ferguson, forty years old, 55 Eleventh street, Troy; in critical condition with fractured skull.

Mrs. Jane Brandt, forty-four years old, of 38 Eleventh street, Troy; in critical condition with fractured skull and other injuries.

Harry C. Brandt, fifty years old, her husband, lacerations of scalp, and suffering from shock.

Thomas Brandt, sixteen years old, their son, minor cuts and badly shaken up, but condition not serious.

Mrs. Mary De Freest, 38 Eleventh street, Troy; fracture of right arm, badly shaken up, but condition not serious.

Speculators who saw the accident say it was a wonder the passengers, who loaded the truck, were not killed when the crash came. The truck was cut in two by the locomotive and dumped a wreck by the side of the track. For hours a report spread through Waterford, Cohoes and Troy that two persons had been killed and ten injured. Ambulances and hearses summoned to the scene of the accident are believed to have caused the rumor.

HERE AND THERE ABOUT THE TOWN

The Stroller Hears That Children of Today are Allowed More Spending Money than the Parents Ever Dreamed of Having.

"I thought I had a quarter," said the customer impatiently, as he vainly searched through his pockets this morning.

"Maybe you lost it," suggested the busy barber with a grin.

"Come to think of it," replied the customer, "it is as good as lost. I gave it to one of my brother's children when he asked me for it."

"That's just it," replied the barber. "In these modern times every thing has changed, even spending money."

"What do you mean?" asked the customer.

"Why," explained the barber, "when I was a kid I would ask dad for a penny and if I got it, which did not happen every time I asked, I thought I was rich. Nowadays, instead of pennies the children ask for quarters, and get them too."

"You said something," agreed the customer, "and getting it for the asking, they waste it in the spending."

"It doesn't seem to me that the children of today are taught to realize the value of money," continued the barber thoughtfully, "and if they were put on the spending basis of twenty and thirty years ago I would teach them that money was valuable."

"Speaking of twenty and thirty years ago," said the customer, "I remember when I first went out with a girl friend all the money I had was twenty-five cents. That was my weekly spending allowance too."

"But how many fellows go out with their first girl nowadays with only that much spending money a week?" suggested the barber.

"None," replied the customer quickly, "for the fact is that the habit of giving the children spending money freely applies to the girls as well as the boys, and nowadays if a boy don't spend some money on a girl she labels him a tightwad."

"You said it," commented the barber.

DADDY'S EVENING
FAIRY TALE
BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

AFRICAN PORCUPINE.

"When I lived in Canada," said the Canadian porcupine, "I was perfectly happy. Of course I am helping the zoo along and being of great interest. I do not mind, but I do not care for zoo life as I do for a life of freedom."

"Ah, what wanderings through the woods I used to have," the Canadian porcupine continued. "I used to go miles and miles along through dark low fir tree forests. I used to live so happily in the woods where people so seldom came."

"And in the springtime when fishing parties would camp in the woods, if a dog bothered me I would soon punish him."

"It is not true that I throw my quills, but if a dog barked at me and tried to fight me—well, he got punished and you know how!"

"I don't like these untrue stories to get around that I throw my quills as the wind throws leaves around. I don't do that, but I can give away some of my quills if I am frightened or annoyed. That is perfectly true."

"In Canada, where there is beautiful country and where the forests are very wonderful I think a porcupine leads a very happy life. Such a free, wild life, no bothersome society around one all the time."

"Here in the zoo folks come and talk and the animals chatter and make such a fuss. I like a life which isn't so cumbered with a worried life, and I'm not going to pretend I like what I don't."

No Canadian porcupine said all this to no one in particular, but the speech was heard, just the same, by a good many of the animals, some of the visitors, boys and girls and by the keeper.

"That is perfectly true," said the keeper, and he told those who hadn't been able to understand just what it was the porcupine had said.

"But I think the African porcupine is going to say something, too," said the keeper. "He will have a different story to tell. We must hear his story, too."

So everyone listened to the story the African porcupine had to tell. It was a little story of his own ideas and so forth.

"That Canadian porcupine," said the African porcupine to himself, "is very fussy."

"He doesn't care for the zoo. He says it is so very fine where he comes from up in Canada that he is very homesick. Now, I am not so fussy."

"My home is in Africa, as anyone might guess or know or imagine because my name tells a good deal. At least it tells two important things."

"The first one is that it tells that I come from Africa or that I am African, which is the same thing, and the second important thing that my name tells is that I am a porcupine."

"They name me well—the African porcupine. It's a good name, a good, sensible name, and it tells folks what I am and how I look, and quite a lot about me."

"Now, little girls and little boys are often so foolishly named. If they were just called 'North American tall thin boy' or 'South American short fat girl,' it would be so much easier."

"How is one to know anything from the name of Sallie or Susie or Kitty, or Jane, or Donald, or John, or James and Jack? When one speaks of the African porcupine one knows what is being spoken about, but when anyone speaks of a friend named Jack I have no idea."

"They may be speaking of a little thin girl with golden curls and blue eyes, or they may be speaking of a very tall girl with black hair and brown eyes, or they may be speaking of a fat boy with a red tie or a thin boy who is very, very tall and who has freckles."

"Yes, I have the right sort of a name, I have, and I'm not in the least fussy. I don't mind it here in the zoo; in fact I like it, and I don't mind Africa in the least, not in the least."

But the Canadian porcupine who heard this said: "Africa isn't Canada, though, and I do miss Canada and its woods."

Doing What You Do Not Like.

It is desirable for young people to choose the life-work which accords with their tastes and qualifications, but never make the mistake of supposing that any work will be altogether pleasant. There is no occupation without some drawbacks. There is no success without sacrifice. You will never do anything of consequence without doing something just do not like.—Girl's Companion.

BEEHLER IS CHAMPION SCOUT

Ulster county can now boast of having a boy scout who has qualified for merit badges. Last night a large scout meeting was held at the local scout headquarters and Vernon Beehler of Troop 5 was awarded these badges. He is the first scout in Ulster county to win this honor. By good hard work the boy passed all his tenderfoot, second and first class scout requirements and then qualified for the merit badges in bugling, swimming and life saving. These badges are intended to stimulate the scout's interest in the life about him and are given for general knowledge. The wearing of these badges does not signify that a scout is qualified to make his living by the knowledge gained in securing the award, but shows one fact that he is an expert in the particular line of scoutcraft for which this badge stands.

Paul Linson, Troop 6, and Edward Beehler, Troop 5, were awarded their first class badges, having passed successfully the following requirements for first class scout:

1. Swim fifty yards.
2. Earn and deposit at least two dollars in a public bank.
3. Send and receive by Semaphore or International Morse alphabet, sixteen letters per minute.
4. Make a round trip alone (or with another scout) to a point at least seven miles away. (fourteen miles in all going on foot, or rowing boat, and write a satisfactory account of the trip and things observed.)
5. Advance first aid: know the methods for pain prevention; what to do in case of fire and ice, electric, and gas accidents; how to help in case of runaway horse, mad dog, or snake bite; treatment for dislocation, concussion, poisoning, fainting, apoplexy, sunstroke, heat exhaustion, and freezing; know treatment for sunburn, its poisoning, bites and stings, nosebleed, earache, toothache, inflammation of eye, ear, throat, or stomach ache, and chills; demonstrate artificial respiration.
6. Prepare and cook satisfactory food in the open, without regular kitchen utensils, two of the following articles, as may be directed: Eggs, bacon, hunter's stew, fish, fowl, game, pancakes, hotcakes, biscuits, hardback, or a "stir-fry" baked on a stick; explain to another boy the methods followed.
7. Read a map correctly, and draw from field notes made on the spot, an intelligible rough sketch map, indicating by their proper marks important landmarks, principal elevations, etc. Point out a compass direction without the help of the compass.
8. Use properly an axe for felling or trimming limbs; hammer; or produce an article of carpentry or cabinet-making or metal work made by himself. Explain the method followed.
9. Judge distance, size, number, height and weight within 25 per cent.
10. Recreate fully from observation ten species of trees or plants, including flowers, ferns, or aquatic or aquatic plants, and give their names, uses, and habits, or the proper form, color, size, taste, or texture, and the soil in which they grow and describe at least three characteristics of each.
11. Furnish satisfactory evidence that he has not into practice in his daily life the principles of the scout oath and law.
12. Have a boy trained by him in the requirements of a tenderfoot.

Reuben of Troop 6, and A. W. T. Troop 7, were awarded their annual award for having qualified for the following requirements:

1. At least one month's service as a tenderfoot.
2. Elementary first aid and bandaging: know the general directions for first aid and injuries; know treatment for fainting, shock, fractures, bruises, sprains, injuries in which the skin is broken, burns and scalds; demonstrate how to carry injured, and the use of the triangular and roller bandages and tourniquet.
3. Elementary signaling: know the Semaphore or the International Morse alphabet.
4. Track half a mile in twenty-five minutes, or, if in town, describe satisfactorily the contents of one store window out of four observed for one minute each.
5. Go a mile in twelve minutes at scout's pace—about fifty steps running and fifty walking, alternately.
6. Use properly knife or hatchet.
7. Prove ability to build a fire in the open, using not more than two matches.
8. Cook a quarter of a pound of meat and two potatoes in the open without the ordinary kitchen cooking utensils.
9. Earn and deposit at least one dollar in a public bank.
10. Know the sixteen principal points of the compass.

Derivation of "Yankee"

The word Yankee as a noun is defined as follows: "A person born or living in New England; a word of doubtful origin, and by some to be the same as Scotch Yankie and by others in the form of Yanchuk a corruption of French Anglaise by the Canadian Indians. Samuel used the term in 1772 in the 'Adventures of Lancelotti' in the 'Yankee'." "Yankee" is a word which has been used in the North since the time of the Revolution.

THE WOODSTOCK ROAD SITUATION

Supervisor Sagen Dorf Explains Course of Town Board As to "Hollow Road" Repairs And Says Board Will Not Be Coerced.

Editor Kingston Freeman:—As you have been printing quite some road talk from Woodstock, in justice to myself and town, board will you kindly print the facts as they are without any white wash or red paint. In this town there are two main highways leaving the state road at Beersville, running north connecting with state road in Shandaken, one on left running through Wittenberg, one on right, running through Willow. The route running through Willow, although longer, owing to a more uniform grade, is used more by the traveling public. In 1917, when we received our part of the auto fund, amounting to $900, the town board having the proportioning of this money and being instructed by state and county officials to place it to continue state road and as the Wittenberg road leaving Beersville was, in bad condition, the Willow road having had crushed stone for a considerable distance, voted to put it on Wittenberg road, with the understanding that the next year, 1918, it should go on the Willow road and to alternate each year from one road to the other. Owing to the lateness of the season when the money for 1917 was received it was not used that year. In 1918 we received $1,100, making a total for the two years $2,000 of which $900 was used on Wittenberg road, $1,100 with $300 from the reserve fund, making $1,400, nearly 60 per cent more on Willow road. In 1919 auto fund received was $1,400. According to agreement made in 1917, this was due to Wittenberg road and by the unanimous consent of the board was placed there. Now the trouble starts. A few residents of Willow thinking the board was partial to Wittenberg not willing to wait their turn for the auto fund, which by the way will be much more next year, held what they called an indignation meeting in which they wanted the board to rescind the placing of the auto fund on Wittenberg road. Not being successful in this they called a good roads meeting in which they misrepresented the board, (putting it mildly) recommended a ticket for the caucus, in which the present board of course was not included. We were asked in this meeting why we did not give more of the reserve fund for the repair of the Willow road. On August 1st, we had $2,000 in reserve fund. Of this amount we placed $700 for repair of this road, said road being less than four miles, leaving about 98 mile of road into the town to be kept in repair from August 1st to March 1st, 1920, with the remaining $1,300. Now can any fair minded person ask why they did not get more? The present town board are not going to be scared, bulldozed or coerced by any one man or set of men or combination of men and women to do anything in their judgement is not for the best interest of the whole town. They are willing to leave the verdict with the tax payers and voters.

Couldn't Hurt That Toad.

There are many surprising stories about toads, observes Philip Hale, editor of the "As the World Wags" column in Boston Herald. Here is one of them, taken from a book containing the names and crimes of people in Northumberland, England. In 1798 a stone mason, Mr. George Wilson, "wantonly murdered" a toad in a wall he was building, making for the toad a escape of lime and stone, to fit it snugly and plastering to prevent the admission of air. Sixteen years afterward a gap was made in the wall so that the toad could pass through. The toad was found alive. Torpid at first, it was soon active, so that it made its way to a pile of stones and disappeared. There were cruel men in Northumberland. Mr. Thomas Anderson was punished in 1681 for playing on a bagpipe before a bridegroom on a Sunday. Among the women, Elizabeth Mills was brought into court for scolding and drying fish on the Lord's day.

Westminster's Wages.

The payment of M. P.'s has always been rather a vexed question, and there are two suggestions going on at present. One is to increase the £400 a year, which they now get (and which, by the way, they voted themselves!), and the other is to decrease it to nil, says London Answers. It is no new thing to pay members for their services. In olden times, however, they were paid by their local organizations, not out of public funds. A knight of the shire got 4s a day in Henry VIII's reign, and a citizen or burgher got 2s. A certain member for Harwich once sued his constituents for his wages and his claim was successful. Previous to the present arrangement of paying M. P.'s out of the treasury, they could claim that the common law still survived by which they were entitled to the salary fixed by custom.

7,450,200 Deaths In War—Total Cost to United States $21,850,000,000.

American casualties during the 47-day Meuse-Argonne offensive aggregated 120,000 men, or 10 per cent of the total of 1,200,000 engaged, according to a "statistical summary of the war with Germany," prepared by Col. Leonard P. Ayres, chief of the statistical branch of the general staff, and published by the war department.

"Of every 100 American soldiers and sailors who took part in the war with Germany," the report said, "two were killed or died of disease during the period of hostilities. In the northern army during the Civil war the number was about ten."

"Among the other great nations in this war between twenty and twenty-five in each 100 called to the colors were killed or died."

Best information obtainable by the general staff places the total battle deaths for all belligerents at 7,450,200, divided as follows:

Russia	1,700,000
Germany	1,600,000
France	1,385,300
Great Britain	900,000
Austria	800,000
Italy	330,000
Turkey	250,000
Serbia and Montenegro	125,000
Belgium	102,000
Rumania	100,000
Bulgaria	100,000
United States	48,900
Greece	7,000
Portugal	2,000

American participation is summarized in the report in the following table:

Total armed forces, including army, navy, marine corps.	4,800,000
Men who went overseas	2,066,000
Men who fought in France	1,390,000
Tons of supplies shipped from America to France	7,500,000
Total registered in draft	24,234,021
Total draft induction	2,810,296
Cost of war to April 30, 1919	$21,850,000,000
Battles fought by American troops	13
Days of battle	200
Days of duration of Meuse-Argonne battle	47
American battle deaths in war	50,000
American wounded in war	236,000
American deaths from disease	50,901
Total deaths in the army	112,422

Under the head of "Sources of the Army" the report shows that 13 per cent came from the regular army, 10 per cent from the National Guard and 77 per cent from the draft.

A concise history of the military operations in which American troops took part is given in a chapter headed "Two Hundred Days of Battle." Attention was called to the fact that "two of every three American soldiers who reached France took part in battle."

Rest, the Remedy

Overwork Cause of Many Unaccounted for Ailments

When we become tired all sorts of things may happen. Sometimes we may have a sense of dizziness or of nausea. In that case the stomach is the weak point and the symptoms are from weariness of that organ. The oversight of some persons is affected by fatigue, and they think they are going blind.

Occasionally, notes an authority, our symptoms convince us we are losing our minds. Every person is familiar with the little lapses that are so annoying—the inability to remember a name soon after it has been heard, the failure to retain the sense of a page just read, the sense of being far away, of general unreality. All of them are evidence of fatigue.

One of the curious things about getting tired is that often we are not conscious of it at the time, or even the next day. People who work long hours on Saturday often do not feel the effects until Monday or Tuesday.

There are very few diseases that are helped by drugs. Not more than six or eight out of 100. But poor health pretty generally is improved by rest. Sleep, of course, is the great rest agency. Most people need at least eight hours; more rather than less. No body need worry about sleeping too much.

Hat of the East Indian Takes Cloth Thirty Feet Long and Three Feet Wide

American women haven't a thing on a man from India when it comes to wearing expensive hats. And they'll have to get busy to crowd as much on their heads as do the men from Bombay, Calcutta and Peshawar, for those oil, yellow and white turbans which are worn adorning the heads of some of the visitors from India are as large as three tablecloths put end to end. Each turban is made up of 90 square feet of cloth, 30 feet long by three feet wide. If one of these dark-skinned men from India should lose his shik turban and try to duplicate it, he would have to pay at least $20 for it. But even in India he pays only about one-fifth this price.

The average person wonders why men in these bustling countries wear a hat which covers the head as completely as the head of an elephant. Both do for the same reason: one seeks protection from the heat and the other from cold. The heat of one's own body is far more endurable than the burning rays of India's sun. A man wears a turban 30 feet long, while a small hat wears one from 4 to 15 feet long. In the Indian jungles, one found that the top of the American hat takes far less time to put on than his turban, and they are careful in discarding the headgear of their fathers for that worn by America.

Cher Ami, Pigeon Hero of World War, Has Joined His Comrades in Great Beyond

The carrier pigeon hero of the war, Cher Ami, is dead. In spite of the skill of the most expert bird authorities in America, this little hero, who first notified American headquarters of the plight of the "Lost Battalion" in charge of Major Charles S. Whittlesey, died recently at the pigeon loft at Potomac park in Washington, D. C.

Many an American had would have been proud to have performed so many heroic deeds for his flag. Since carrying the famous message, Cher Ami had been personally petted by General Pershing, and tradition of all time was shattered when the American general in an official memorandum to the war department cited the little bird for the right to wear a distinguished service cross.

In its last flight through whistling shrapnel, Cher Ami was shot through the breast and the right leg was torn away. An especially appointed pigeon expert was selected to bring the invalid message bearer home. A basket of rations was lined with pads of cotton to ease the long ocean voyage. At Potomac park one of the screened porches of the pigeon hospital was set aside for the exclusive use of Cher Ami.

The little patient grew weaker and weaker. Daily consultations were held to plan dumping food for the pigeon "care." Experts at the national zoological garden, the Smithsonian Institution and the army pigeon loft at Camp Meigs each day eagerly offered suggestions. But all efforts to prolong the life of Cher Ami were vain and now the remarkable bird is mourned as one who helped to win the world war.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Any man who loses a lawnet will tell you there's no such thing as justice nowadays. A lot of life insurance makes any widow good looking. If we didn't have to eat, a lot of men would rather go hungry than work for a meal. Every man wishes he could earn as much money as some richer man he knows, without having to work as hard for it.

Pure Colors Are Rare in Nature, Writer Declares

The life family is well represented among the early flowers. A well-known member is the Clintonia, though the flower is better known than the name. The berries, writes W. L. Brewster in "Birds' Life," are remarkable for being of a pure blue color, the so-called blue usually showing some trace of purple. Pure colors are exceedingly rare in nature. It would be a harsh and glaring world indeed if red, blue and yellow, pure and unmodified, were the dominant colors. Pure yellow may be seen in the common evening primrose.

WHY

War on Predatory Animals Must Be Kept Up

Some of the mountains in the Southwest still harbor stock-killing bears—animals capable within a short time of robbing the stockman of his profits. Depredations by mountain lions—killers of sheep, cattle and horses and worst enemy of deer—are still frequent. Coyotes are plentiful, and although they have been killed in large numbers, they still levy a heavy toll. Large sums are annually paid out in bounties on their account, yet year by year they are in many sections an increasing menace to the sheep industry. The high value of their furs during the past several years has encouraged hunters, but the breeding stock left after each fur season is more than sufficient to keep up their numbers. The big gray wolf has been reduced in New Mexico from 400 to less than 25, chiefly through intensive trapping of these animals the last three years by the organized federal and state forces.

No relaxation in the work of destroying predatory animals is justifiable until these profiting outlaws are exterminated, says the biological survey of the United States department of agriculture. Organized effort, and high-class personnel are required to exterminate them within a few years. Organized operations must be backed by sufficient hunter forces to meet the situation generally in New Mexico and other parts of the Southwest, and to supervise cooperative work. Intensive work for a few years is manifestly more economical than partial efforts over a longer period.

IS GOOD WORD, BUT SLANG

Why It Is Considered a Compliment to Refer to a Friend of Either Sex as a "Pal"

The dictionary recognizes the right of "pal" to inclusion in our language, though designating it as slang. Like many words thus classed, it is a terse way of expressing a relationship readily understood but not so easily defined. In good society it is accepted as meaning a chum, a congenial companion; in the vocabulary of crime it stands for a confederate or accomplice. The most natural and instinctive thing in life is a desire for congenial companionship; only the abnormally developed mentally can live on a self-centered plane as to exclude other personalities. A pal is an intimate friend, of either sex, to whom one may "talk as the heart bents," may confide hopes, fears, happiness, and disappointments, certain the trust will not be betrayed. Between opposite sexes it excludes love-making or "spoofing," but means a broad, intelligent, faithful, yet subtle friendship. Since all friends are not pals; not necessarily a unanimity of opinion, but a disposition to "agree to disagree" in case of differences. There is a tacit respect for each other's individuality.

Perhaps one of the best tests of a pal is that the two enjoy silence together; there is a sense of companionship in being together without the constant trickle of words which most of us feel necessary unless one would be thought unsocial.—Detroit Free Press.

Why Animals Welcome Peace

Thousands of monkeys today are being incited with influenza germs, in order that doctors may study the progress of the disease and discover remedies to stay its dreadful course.

Most people will agree that it is justifiable to subject these animals to suffering in order to safeguard human life. But during the war, thousands of animals were condemned to cruel deaths so that scientists could

THIS old saying is true in the clothing business as well as in other things. That is why we do not overlook the least little thing that makes for the satisfaction of our customers and the betterment of our service.

Little things that seem insignificant to others are very important to us. What others do good, bad or indifferently, we try to do best.

Herein lies the success of this store-service—success that comes from the confidence and satisfaction of our patrons. Confidence and satisfaction that are the result of a broader, more enlightened, more intensified service.

discover the most efficacious means of destroying human life.

Both in Germany and in this country the scientists who brought the horrible art of poison gas to perfection experimented on man, dogs, donkeys, cats, and other animals, and judged by its results on these dumb creatures whether or it was calculated to destroy human life with sufficient certainty to justify its use.

Quite apart from the countless horses and mules that have been slaughtered in the war, great numbers of animals have been offered up as sacrifices to safeguard soldiers.

Why Zoo Animals Died

One hundred animals in the Paris zoological gardens died during the war. After a bomb from a German airplane made a hole in the Rue Casser, alongside the gardens, the authorities thought it wise to kill the ani-sonous snakes, lest they should escape and cause a panic. Later the river Seine overflowed its banks and flooded part of the gardens, and monkeys, antelopes and giraffes developed chest complaints and died. Only the tiger-fowl flourished, but Coco, the hippo, the pride of the gardens, died of ennui, they say, as the gardens were virtually deserted during the war.

How Poland May Be Restored

Agricultural Poland is one of the most productive nations of the earth ordinarily. Its best sugar industry is exceptionally important. Polish farmers declare it should soon be again what it was for centuries, the granary of Europe. Cattle raising was discouraged by governmental restrictions, but the sheep industry is conducted on a gigantic scale, and under the new government it is estimated that cattle and hides again will become articles of export.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Chicago, Sept. 2.—Whether the Prohibition party is to be kept alive for solution of problems other than that of drying up the remaining wet spots of the world is the question which stirred members of the party as they gathered today for the final session of its convention here.

It already has been decided that the party is to remain intact as a national party through the 1920 campaign, but the question of taking up world wide prohibition either directly or indirectly through the prohibition foundation, has started considerable discussion.

The national committee is devoting much time to consideration of a change of name for the party. Some seem to think that an organization with such a title as "Prohibition Party" would become obsolete.

STAGEHANDS SPLIT WITH EQUITY MEN

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, Sept. 2.—The drama war here looked more ominous than ever today, following the refusal of stage hands to work at the Shubert Theater last night where Fortune Gallo's opera, "The Mikado," was to have had its premiere. As a result the opera was unable to open.

All the members of its cast were in good standing in the Equity Association.

Surprise at such action was manifested by both the strikers and the producing managers because Gallo is a supporter of the Actors' Equity Association and its cause. He will have to pay rent for the theater, whether the opera is presented or not. Equity leaders said an explanation for the strike would have to come from the Stage Mechanics' Union.

In addition, moving picture operators at the Bronx Opera House walked out, darkening that house. Union heads refused to say whether the operators' action presaged a similar strike at all movie houses in New York.

I Take No Chances With My Baby

WHEN I found I couldn't nurse my baby any longer,
I made up my mind to find a food for him that would be safe—that would be sure to bring him health and happiness.

I knew raw cow's milk was hard for him to digest because of the tough curd—and I was afraid of the dangers of germs, particularly in hot weather.

And then my doctor told me the safest form of milk—the easiest to digest—the nearest thing to mother's milk—was Nestlé's Milk Food. My baby has thrived and grown in health and happiness ever since.

You see, Nestlé's is really milk
—but with the tough curd broken up by changing it to a fluffy powder, and with just the right amount of sugar and cereal added.

I found that the Nestlé Company likes to save babies and keep them well. They put us free enough

WOODSTOCK ROADS TO THE FORE

McKenzie Insurgents Hold Meeting And Denounce Government By Alleged "Ring" Now In Power.—Would Issue Bonds For Roads.

(Contributed.)

Willow, Sept. 2.—At a meeting held on Friday night, August 29, in Fireman's Hall at which were present about four hundred voters and taxpayers, the subjects of good roads, better government for the whole town and honest clean elections, etc., were taken up by the various speakers. Charles J. McKenzie, the chairman, addressed the audience briefly upon the necessity of good roads stating there were about 25 miles of main roads in the town of Woodstock some of which were state or macadam roads. As the town has no bonded indebtedness, he proposed to vote upon the issuing of bonds for about $300,000 getting from the state aid fund all possible to add to this amount and putting stone on all main roads at once. This could be done for about $1,500 per mile as the town has a crusher, etc. If this were done the valuation of all land would increase as people will always buy property on improved roads. He said the town needed a change in their way of doing business. At present the town board met in a little garage on Bearville road at no stated time and no person or taxpayer who wishes to see them on business can tell where to find them. He suggested that a change should be made along the following lines:

1.—Elect good, honest independent and capable men for your town offices. This is most important.

2.—Meet every month on certain date in M. E. Hall, Woodstock.

3.—Meetings open to public to hear all proceedings or do business with the board.

4.—That all important matters affecting the whole town such as large appropriations of money for roads or other purposes, a hearing should be given to all concerned.

5.—That a full set of minutes be kept of all proceedings and votes of each man be recorded, same to be open at all meetings for public inspection.

6.—That a brief yearly report of all business and a financial statement of receipts and expenditures be printed in leaflet form and distributed to all post offices in the town of Woodstock for the taxpayers to take home and look over.

All business to be done in the open in a business like manner.

He then took up the subject of honest elections, stating he was told that wholesale vote buying had been going on for years, also that there seemed to be enough evidence to convict certain men. He stated that any man who would buy or sell a vote was not fit to be an American citizen. Also that the subject had been taken up with the proper authorities and someone may suffer if the practice is continued.

At a meeting in Milk Hollow school, about 150 being present from different parts of the town, the following men were unanimously selected as men who should make good officers satisfactory to the people:

For supervisor, Ford Burhans of Shady; justice of the peace, Woodstock, George Noher of Woodstock; justice at Lake Hill, John Siskler; justice at Witterheiz, Frank Happy.

Democrat, to be endorsed by Republicans, for assessors, Edwin Waters, Clarence Lepp, to succeed themselves; for collector, Clarence Howland of Shady. No one was decided upon for superintendent of highways. Left open for caucuses.

The next speaker, Dr. Willis of New York, summer home at Lake Hill, made a very convincing plea for good roads, stating how this movement started over the neglect of the main road from Bearville to Mt. Pleasant; how the board put $1,000 of the auto money on the Witterheiz road and neglected the road through Dobbin Hollow, which was in fearful and dangerous shape. He served the town board and County Superintendent Longhram for allowing such conditions to exist and said that it was after much argument that they allowed an appropriation of $700, and that the residents and others all over the town had donated teams, men and cash to the amount of $500 to add to the insignificant sum they allowed and that no such conditions should be allowed to exist by men who were elected to serve the whole town. His speech was received with much enthusiasm.

Mrs. Mallory of New York, who has a country estate at Woodstock, made a very eloquent and earnest appeal to the women to come out and do their duty by voting for good, honest officials and civic improvement.

Mrs. Updegraff, the well known suffrage speaker, needed no introduction to the people of Woodstock. She impressed upon the women the necessity for them to take an active part in the affairs of their home town, even to attend the caucus for the selecting of candidates. The audience seemed sorry when she finished.

The last speaker, Mrs. George Hooke of Lake Hill, in a very few well directed words, told the town board that there were other roads and other taxpayers besides Woodstock and that all roads should be looked after instead of the chosen few. Her address was right to the point.

In closing Chairman McKenzie called the attention of those present to the necessity of their coming to the caucus Saturday night, September 6, at the M. E. Hall, Woodstock, at 8 o'clock, to vote for the men they wished, otherwise the old machine that had controlled the town for years would win out. He said that all those interested should be on hand Saturday, September 6, or stop growling about the men selected to administer their affairs.

WEAPON LAW EFFECTIVE.

It Marks Opening of More Serious Punishment For Offenders.

Added protection against the bomb thrower and carrier of concealed weapons is expected to result from the amendment to the penal law which became effective September 1st. The provisions of the new law are very strict. No boy under 16 is allowed to carry a slung shot, while a person who carries or possesses a bomb or bombshell, or possesses an explosive substance with intent to use it against the person or property of another is guilty of a felony. Under the new statute aliens are not to be given permits to carry concealed weapons. The new law defines a weapon that can be concealed as a blackjack, billy, club, sandbag, metal knuckles, bludgeon, dagger, dirk, dangerous knife, razor, stiletto, pistol or firearm of such size that it can be concealed about the person.
